

“Natural Sciences and Scientific Networks: The Case of the Delessert Family.”

Université Paris Nanterre, France, Friday 22 March 2019.

Contact: Thierry Hoquet, Université Paris Nanterre, France (thierry.hoquet@hotmail.fr) or J. Marc MacDonald, University of Prince Edward Island, Canada (jmamacdonald@upei.ca)

Bâtiment Paul Ricoeur, 4^e étage, Salle des Conseils. Université Paris Nanterre, France, Friday 22 March 2019.

10h. J. Marc MacDonald (University of Prince Edward Island) : Bound by Botany: Rousseau, the Delesserts, the Hookers, and Cultural Connection between Malthusianism and Darwinism.

11h. Alexandra Cook, (University of Hong Kong) : Informal correspondence anticipating a scientific paradigm shift: Jean-Jacques Rousseau's botanical exchanges with the Boy de la Tour and Delessert families.

12h-12h30 : Discussion générale.

12h30-14h : Déjeuner

14h. Pietro Corsi (University of Oxford) : Systèmes de la Nature and Theories of Life: Bridging the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries

15h. Thierry Hoquet (Université Paris Nanterre) : Botanical agencies: William Pamplin and the Paris-London booktrade.

16h-16h30. Discussion générale et conclusions.